

Reference Letter

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to highly recommend Zhong Yongxin, who interned at Frost & Sullivan in January 2025. I firmly believe she is an outstanding candidate for your program.

During her internship, Ms. Zhong excelled in analyst training and assessments, producing weekly reports. She independently completed a high-quality analysis on new-era consumption trends and developed market calculations for AI toys, silicon wafers, and carbon fiber composites. Additionally, she handled document filing, mastered national writing standards, and performed compliant typesetting.

Ms. Zhong finished all assigned tasks with high quality, demonstrating strong learning and execution abilities. She maintained rigor in industry analysis and data calculation, proactively verifying inconsistent data and adjusting unreasonable logic, consulting professionally when facing difficulties to ensure accuracy and professionalism.

Ms. Zhong demonstrates strong responsibility and independent work ability. She efficiently manages her schedule, completes all tasks to a high standard on time, and maintains timely, effective communication with her supervisor regarding progress and challenges, showcasing excellent professionalism and communication skills.

Overall, We have full confidence that she will achieve excellent results in any future professional endeavors she undertakes. I hereby give my highest recommendation to Ms. Zhong for any academic or professional opportunities she may pursue.

Please contact me if you require further information.

Kind regards,
